THE WEEK OPENS WITH A DELIGHT-FUL ENTERTAINMENT AT LABURNUM.

Receptions, Excursions, Parties, Germans and Other Events-The Exedus Approaching-Where People Will Go.

Society records another gay week. Afternoon receptions, moonlight excursions, a german, and evening entertainments show that there is no indication of our social life waning as yet, although the time is drawing very near for the summer exodus. On Tuesday evening, Laburnum, the elegant country home of Mr. Joseph Bryan, was the scene of a very delightful enter-tainment given in honor of Miss Van Wycke, tainment given in honor of Miss Van Wycke, of Baltimore, who is the guest of the Misses Stewart at Brook Hill. Mr. Davis delighted the guests with some charming stereopticon views, after which Messra. Salle Watkins and Edward Hanewinchel sang most pleasingly and Miss Alies Williams played. Mr. Thomas Carter related the experiences of a darky at a telephone (overheard at Polk Miller's) with inmitable drollery. He also recited "Uncle Gabe," and added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

SALVATION-ARMY RECRUITS MUST BE THE SAVIOUR'S INDEX-BOARD.

Talk with Captain McFarlane About This Humble Band and Its Work-The Richmond Corps.

Staff-Captain John McFarlane, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, paid an official visit to the Richmond orps on Friday. He arrived in the afternoon from points further South, spent several hours with those in charge of the branch here, and conducted services that night.

The Captain is of medium height, has black hair, eyes, and moustache, is rather iandsome, and quite a good talker. Friday night a Disparch reperter visited the headquarters of the Richmond corps, which are in the upper story of the low, squatty building at the northeast corner of Main and Seventh streets.

Ascending a short flight of steps the reporter found himself in a low-pitched room, about 15x30 feet, lighted by oillamps. A few wooden benches and several plain chairs constituted the furnishing. At the south end of the room is a raised platform, which was occupied by Captain McFarlane, Captain Blackman, the commander of the Richmond corps, two female warnors, a small bey about fifteen years of age, and on the end was a member of the army with a violin. Captain McFarlane had a tambourine. The exercises consisted of a hymn sung to the tune of "Tramp, tramp, tramp, boys, we're all marching." with violin and tambourine accompaniment. VISIT TO HEADQUARTERS.

AN EXPERIENCE MEETING. This was followed with prayers by the two aptains, the violinist, and Captain Black-captains, the violinist, and Captain Black' man's wife.

Captain McFarlane then said he would like to have members of the army relate their experience. One after another responded, telling what the Lord had done for them, and all expressed their firm determination, with the help of God, to continue to love and serve Him. There was another prayer and then Captain McFarlane made a few remarks, closing by extending an invitation to those present McGariane made a few federars, closing extending an invitation to those present who desired to forsake their sins and were anxious to save their souls to come forward and be prayed for. No one responding, the meeting closed with prayer and bene-

A TALK WITH THE CAPTAIN. Captain McFarlane is a fluent speaker and seemed very enthusiastic in his work. After the services the reporter had a short interview with him. He said he was born at Paisley, near Glasgow, thirty years ago: that he was a dyer and also leather belt maker by trade. I welve years ago he came to this country and located at Lewiston, Me., where he had charge of the dyeing-works. After remaining there one year he joined the Salvation Army, with the understanding that no salary should be guaranteed and to depend upon the sympathy of the ing that no salary should be plantaneed and to depend upon the sympathy of the people and God for support. In February, 1890, he was appointed to take charge of the South, since which time he has paid acceral visits to Richmond and made many friends among our people. "What are your duties?" asked the re-"What are your duties?" asked the reporter.

"About the same as the bishops in the Methodist Church," the pleasant Captain replied. "I have charge of the department embracing Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, District of Columbia, and Delaware, and my time is devoted in visiting the army corps in those States."

"What are the conditions required of a recruit before he is allowed to enhist?"

"The recruit must have a clear knowledge of his sins having been forgiven. He must live a life in the workshop, store, or place of business the same as in the meeting. He must have the sprit to go on the street-corners and speak for God's cause. In fact, he must be a sign or finger-board to Christ."

A HARD LIFE. The Captain said that the Salvation Army The Captain said that the Salvation Army had been criticised, ridiculed, scoffed at, insulted with foul obscentiles, spit upon, deluged with refuse, pelted with garbage and brickbats, belabored with sticks, bespattered from head to foot with mud, and hounded through the streets by mobs, and that religious bodies have rarely had a good word for them. The law, the magistrates, and police have been generally against them, yet not one of the Salvation Army had ever retaliated, however brutal the insult, however shameful or wanton the provocation.

The Captain said that the commander-in-hief of the forces in the United States is Ballington Booth, son of General ooth, who is now visiting his father in wanced on a Raised Draft.

Mr. J. W. Sinton, cashier of the City Bank, has received a letter from the Mercantile National Bank of New York containing a letter from the First National Bank of Leavenworth and a check from the latter for $130.87.

This is in part payment of the $250 obtained by the negro forger Lewis in prison at Lansing, Kan., by raising a draft drawn by the Leavenworth bank on the one in New York.

GOT BACK OVER HALF.

The raised check was sent to the True Reformers' Bank, an institution managed by colored men in this city, for deposit. They, after a time, advanced $250 on it and sent the draft to the New York bank, which certified and returned it. After a time the forgery was discovered, and on the demand of the New York bank the Richmond institution gave up the check.

Cashier Charles Peafer, of the Leavenworth bank, writes that he visited the Kansas State prison at Lansing, and had an hour's interview with Lewis, who fully described how he raised the draft. Mr. Peafer states that he succeeded in having Lewis request the Warden to turn over to him all the money standing to the prisoner's credit on the books. WANTED A GUAED.

Judge Witt inquired if the defence wished to submit a motion for bail.

Replying to this Judge Marshall said he had expected Dr. Gordon to be present and testify to Booker's physical condition. He would suggest that the Court might detail a guard to keep watch over him so tail a guard to keep watch over him so that he might not have to go to jail. Judge Witt at once responded that he had no authority to comply with this re-

Booker's counsel then said they would deliver him up.

Before leaving the bench Judge Witt told Messers. Marshall and Stringfellow that he would be at the court-room for the next three or four days in case they wished to submit a motion for bail.

Court was then adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

DRIVEN TO JAIL. DRIVEN TO JAIL.

For a few moments after adjournment the prisoner was engaged in writing a letter. When this was done, he, his uncle (Major Richardson), and Deputy-Sergeant Ferneyhough entered a carriage at the Capitol-street entrance. Although the accused walked with difficulty, he assisted Major Robert Stiles, who is on crutches from an attack of rheumatic gout, to descend the stairs.

Word was given the driver to stop at the store corner Tenth and Broad streets, the store corner Tenth and Broad streets, that some eigars might be purchased. This was done, and at hait-past 1 o'clock Booker was again within the prison walls. The city ambulance was summoned yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock to attend a white man at No. 908 west Clay street, who was accidentally hit on the head, and slightly hurt. After receiving the proper medical attention he was left at the place of the accident.

As a citizen of Richmond I ask the Drs. Parca to give me sufficient space in its columns in which to call the attention of the proper authorities to the utler and cruninal recklesmess with which the electric cars are run upon our streets. At night these cars go flying by at a break-neck speed, placing in jeopardy the lives of men, women, and children. Frequently the gong is not sounded at the crossings. After the terrible accident last night ought there to be any more delay in demanding that the speed of the cars shall be limited and that the gongs shall always be sounded?

I repeat that the utter recklessness with which the electric cars are run at night is criminal and somebody should be held responsible.

Call at once at We hear the question on all sides: "What do you think of the East Richmood scheme? Do you think it will succeed?" These are most natural questions, and These are most natural questions, and why?

Is it of any importance to Richmond that she should have, for the first time in her history, an extensive hardware manufactory in her midst? Is it of any moment that she should have a large and thoroughly equipped sewing-machine factory, turning out hundreds of machines per day? Does it concern the city at large, and especially the contiguous country, that we should have established here an extensive carriage, and wagon-works, and that we should not be dependent upon the northern and western cities for this important branch of our trade?

Is it of any consequence that the population of this city be increased several thousand by the skilled mechanics and laborers necessarily brought here to operate these industries? These great things have been and are now being done by the East Richmond Company, hence the great public interest it has awakened. Is this not success? The building up of Richmond and making it a great manufacturing and commercial centre, as it of right should and will be, is our common cause and appeals to the pride of every one of her citizens.
